

David Phillips

From Trebetherick Point

I hold the hazy shades at bay—
The sun sits sessile—

The sand is yellow—until it is grey—
The sea brims until it breaks—

Onward—I watch the wake—
And further—the ships nestle
In their resting place—
You—my dear—are such a vessel