

Stephen Robertson

There must be moonshine

Fin de siècle.
Ethel Sargant, botanist
(Girton student 1880s)
builds a lab in her garden in Reigate, on her way to recognition, fellowships (Linnean Society 1904, Girton College 1913).

The Reigate lab, of course
has a source of pure water: a still.

Garden shed with a still? Local excise officer takes to dropping by unannounced.
Catch them at it—
there must be moonshine.